Sometimes there are unique questions which neither surveillance, public records searches nor social media investigations can fully answer. To fill these information gaps, DigiStream has a suite of Specialty Sweeps designed to uncover critical information about a subject’s routines, hobbies, and general activity level by targeting certain facilities within a geographic location. The resulting information often provides rich detail with which to enhance further investigations.